Week 32

---

A Peek at Our Week!

Reading/ELA: Next week in reading, we'll be exploring the difference between sentence fragments and run-on sentences. We'll also learn how to "decode" unfamiliar words by using context clues. During reading centers, we'll continue practicing how to identify key elements of poetry. In phonics, our focus will be on words beginning with wa- and qua-. And don't forget—our final Wordly Wise check on Unit 14 will be on Friday!

Judge/Stephen Math: Next week, we will conclude our measurement unit with a focus on measuring liquid capacity using liters. Students will engage in hands-on activities and real-life examples to better understand how liters are used in everyday situations. We will also continue working on solving multi-step word problems involving length, weight, and capacity to strengthen our problem-solving skills.

On Friday, we'll finish the week with our end-of-unit Measurement Quiz.

Blackledge Math: Our students worked so hard on their MAP test this week—I'm incredibly proud of their effort and focus! In math, we've been learning about partitioning shapes, and next week we'll dive into some exciting new multiplication strategies. Can't wait to see their math brains in action!

Science: This week in science, we're kicking off an exciting adventure—learning all about the butterfly life cycle! Our class just received our very own caterpillars, and we can't wait to watch them grow, change, and transform right before our eyes. Let the metamorphosis begin! Next week, we'll continue exploring the stages of the butterfly life cycle and discover even more amazing facts about these fascinating creatures!

Social Studies: This week in social studies, we started learning about one of Georgia's famous leaders: Juliette Gordon Low. Next week, we will learn about another Georgia Leader: Jimmy Carter. We will have a quiz on our Georgia Leaders on Tuesday, April 29th.
